Who are Parent Support Advisors?

Parent Support Advisors work together with schools and other agencies to support parents and carers in their role as parents.

They do this by:

- Working in partnership with parents and carers to help them to access any further services they may need sometimes by signposting and providing information about other agencies and support within the community
- Helping parents and carers with parenting issues by offering one to one support and parenting programmes
- Working with parents and carers through transitions to help them to be better prepared to support their children
- Supporting parents to take up learning opportunities themselves by providing information and signposting
- Working with parents and carers to try to make sure that children and young people are getting the most out of school and are safe and happy

Parents and carers are able to contact their Parent Support Advisor themselves. Parent Support Advisors will also receive referrals from schools and other agencies.

Parent Support Advisors will periodically review their work with parents when their involvement may end. However, the length of support will depend on the complexity of the issues and needs of the parent involved.

Our aim is to ensure that parents feel involved in their child's education, and confident about the ways in which they can help their child to succeed.
